

► BOYS ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

■ Who he is: Brad Miles, junior, North Penn cross country
 ■ What he's done: Miles won the Varsity Boys A race at the Salesianum Invitational last Saturday in Wilmington, Del. His time of 16:20.29 was the third fastest all-time at the Brandywine Creek State Park course since its redesign in 1996.

BRAD MILES

He also took first place last Wednesday's tri-meet with Central Bucks West and Central Bucks South. He finished in a time of 15:50, 17 seconds ahead of second place. North Penn topped both teams — defeating West 19-41 and South 15-45.

■ What's next: The Knights host a Suburban One League Continental Conference tri-meet with Central Bucks East and Pennridge 3:45 p.m. Tuesday. North Penn then completes in the Manhattan College Invitational in New York 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

■ What he said: "I just stuck behind my teammates in the beginning because they went out hard today," Miles said last Wednesday. "I didn't think we were gonna be pushing it that hard, but at the end we started pushing it."

■ What North Penn coach Ron Jaros said: "He's finally all of sudden this week really had a burst, I guess you could call it. That's a really tough course in Delaware. He did a nice job. He's really maturing as a distance runner."

at Turtle Creek, as will Day 2 of the girls individual districts. (Day 1 for the girls was at Hickory Valley's fast and brutal Presidential course.) The top six girls will move on to regionals.

It was a shotgun start for the boys Monday, with groups starting on different holes to expedite the rounds (today will be the traditional staggered tee times). Welsh started on No. 18, a winding par 5 that includes two bodies of water.

He double-bogeyed it. Fortunately, he followed up with a pair of birdies to get on track.

Pennridge's Danny Walck (81) and Souderton's Nate Cordero (82) narrowly missed the cut. Wissahickon's Zach Weiss shot an 84, and North Penn's Brian Palm finished with a 91.

Methacton's Zach Hill (92) and Garreth Ofenloch (103), who have shot well on many past occasions, were hoping for better outcomes.

Trojans trounce Norristown

By DENNY DYROFF
 For the Times Herald

LOWER GWYNEDD — Wissahickon's midfield had Norristown's players seeing double in Monday's Suburban One League American Conference field hockey game — and for good reason.

The Trojans' Bossert Twins — Ashley and Aubrey — combined for the first goal of the game with Aubrey netting the goal and Ashley registering the assist.

Aubrey finished the game with two goals while Ashley's ledger showed three goals and one assist. The Bossert siblings, who provided "Double Trouble" for the Eagles, were just part of Wissahickon's powerful attack.

Gretchen Guaglianone scored back-to-back goals and Natalie Draham came through with a quartet of assists. When the final whistle sounded at Wissahickon's stadium, the Trojans owned a 9-1 league win the Eagles and a perfect 14-0 overall record (11-0, American Conference).

"On our first goal, I received a nice pass from Ashley and just tapped it in," said Aubrey Bossert, the elder sister by 18 minutes.

The ice-breaker was netted just under four minutes into the first half. Less than three minutes later, the Trojans got the winning goal when Ashley Bossert scored and Draham logged her first assist of the game.

"I was right in front of the goal," said Ashley Bossert, a junior. "Natalie passed it and I happened to be there. It was a nice pass."

Draham took less than five minutes to log her second assist when she set up a goal by Guaglianone at the 18:26 mark. The score remained 3-0 at halftime.

With 1:24 gone in the second half, Guaglianone found the mark again with assistance from Laura Miller.

The Eagles registered their first shot of the game just over one minute later and it paid off in a goal. Norristown's talented young freshman forward Samantha Kidd scored with the assist credited to Lauren Grose.

It took the Trojans just 25 seconds to answer — a goal scored by Alyssa Tourdot created by another Draham assist. Draham set up the Trojans' next score — a goal by scoring machine Adelle Lever. Wissy's seventh goal came off the stick of Aubrey Bossert.

Bri (McMichael) could really get behind the ball and dig it.

"I thought we served tough. We didn't look flashy but served good float serves that kept them off balance."

In game one, the Patriots trailed by just one after a back row kill by Marie Madden, but a net serve by the Patriots was followed by a Parmer block, putting the Indians on top 12-9. It was still at three-point game when Amy Brown stepped to the service line and served for four straight points, giving the Indians a 20-13 lead on their way to a 25-19 win.

Game two was a war. Souderton led 4-2 after back-to-back Parmer aces, and they upped that lead to 9-3 after a Sparks ace.

"All this week we have practiced hitting spots, and we've learned to make them adjust to our serve and to not serve right to someone," Terrell said.

GIRLS ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

■ Who she is: Jessica Cunning, junior, Lansdale Catholic soccer

■ What she's done: Cunning scored three goals and handed out two assists as the Crusaders defeated West Catholic 8-0 last Thursday.

JESSICA CUNNING

■ What's next: Lansdale Catholic play four games in four days this week, with the final three at Gwynedd Mercy 3:45 p.m. Tuesday, at West Catholic 4 p.m. Wednesday and at Neumann-Goretti 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

■ What she said: "That was a fun game — I played everywhere and did whatever I could," Cunning said last Saturday of the West Catholic game. "The Methacton game, if we won that game it would have been such a great win. Our team was on such a high, we had all the wins and everything, an undefeated season, and we were all on top of the world, so we needed that Methacton game to bounce back to reality."

"We have a big game Tuesday against Gwynedd Mercy, who we're looking forward to playing, and it's gonna be an intense game."

■ What Lansdale Catholic coach Tom O'Donnell, said: "She played well that day — everything seemed to work for her," he said last Saturday. "(At the Methacton game) I told the girls you've done everything right, it just hasn't gone in."

■ Honorable Mention: Claire Uhle (Wissahickon tennis); Brianna Schwoyer (Christopher Dock field hockey); Christy Cohick (North Penn cross country).

76ers cut 3 players

By CARYL KAUFFMAN
 Journal Register News Service

PHILADELPHIA — The 76ers made their first cuts before Monday's practice at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine, and a former Temple player heaved a sigh of relief, albeit a small one.

"I feel like the work is just beginning," Antwan Robinson said. "It was a very, very tough and intense training camp. I feel truly blessed to have made it past the first cut, but as long as I keep working hard, I think the sky's the limit for me."

The Sixers brought five players to camp who didn't have guaranteed contracts. Maureece Rice, Andre Emmett and Cory Underwood were cut. Robinson and Jared Reiner, a 6-foot-11 center, remain.

Since leaving Temple in 2006, the 6-8 Robinson has played with three different NBA teams in summer league, Houston, Seattle and Orlando, and the Sixers are his second training camp team. He was with Atlanta last fall and played in five preseason games.

In his first year after college, Robinson played for the Sioux Falls Skyforce of the NBA Development league. Last year, after being waived by the Hawks, he played again for Sioux Falls before heading overseas.

There, his game seemed to flourish. In 20 games with Elan Bearnise Pau-Orthes of the French League, the 24-year-old averaged 9.9 points, 5.6 rebounds, 1.4 assists and 1.3 steals.

"The game is totally different," he said of European basketball. "It's spread out, and they isolate you to do most of the things, like stand out and spot up and shoot, and that's one of my specialties. At the same time, you have to be aggressive down low. When I got the ball it was one of those things like, 'no blood, no foul' but in the D-League, you get a ticky-tack foul, you're at the foul line."

In Europe, Robinson was used as a power forward, which expanded his skills.

"That was one thing that helped me out," he said. "The European game and the NBA game are two different worlds; it's like night and day. Over there, I'm a great European four, but in the NBA, I'm a two or a three."

The experience has made him a more versatile player, which intrigues coach Maurice Cheeks.

"He can shoot the ball, he can rebound the ball," Cheeks said. "He can play two spots — he can play three and four. And he helps our practice by being able to play three and four. I kind of like him, especially in the scrimmage where he made a couple of shots. We've got to get him to get up and down the floor a little better, but he can play two spots. I think that's the main thing."

The odds for Robinson or Reiner aren't all that good. The Sixers have 14 players under contract, including Jason Smith who is out after knee surgery, probably for the year. NBA teams can carry 15 players, but only 12 can be active for a game.

And the Sixers are nearly at the luxury tax threshold, which could factor into their decision on whether to carry 15 players. With Robinson and Reiner, their roster now stands at 16.

All Robinson can do is continue to work and prove that he's worth keeping.

"I take it as I'm trying to help out the team wherever they need me, not as a one-on-one battle with Jared," he said. "He's in a different position than I am. His role is different than mine. I always try to show that wherever they need me to help out on the team, that's where I'm gonna try to help them out. If I'm what they need, then hopefully, I'll be around. If Jared's what they need, then he'll be around. It's more or less what the team needs."
